Poem 13

A Tale of Two Cities

John Peter

In the storms of the shrills Of arms, smoke and the drills All were scarred, burnt and afraid Powerless and helpless were they n ade.

Woeful were all the hills Was'eful were all he guills None to share their moans

None to lessen their groans.

The flowers, flavours all smashed Burnt, crushed and all dashed And all passed through the grind Leaving there nothing behind.

No eyes could look

The explosion that took

The lives of two glories

In the moments of furies.

All was done by a nation Who in her wild passion Cared not for the human rights Nor saved them from deadly fights.

But how much great were they Who bore the pains of black day:

"Ashes are not merely the waste

They can really create the great."

EXPLANATION WITH REFERENCE TO THE CONTEXT

LINES 1-4

In the storms of the shrills Of arms, smoke and the drills All were scarred, burnt and afraid Powerless and helpless were they made.

REFERENCE:

lese lines have been taken from the poem "A Tale of Two Cities" by John Peter.

ONTEXT:

The poet describes horrible destruction when Japan was bombarded by America in 1945. The Japanese suffered the brutality patiently and bravely. They did not lose heart and rose to the heights of glory again. The poem is a condemnation of the use of nuclear weapons.

EXPLANATION:

The poet describes the scene of devastation of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. When America and its allies dropped atom bombs on the two glorious cities in 1945, there was destruction everywhere. It was a horrible scene. The loud sounds of explosions were deafening. Life was burning and smoke was rising. Millions of people were injured, burnt, and killed. The innocent civilians were killed horribly and mercilessly. They were made to suffer insufferable pain. They were totally helpless and powerless. There was no one to save their life or ease their death.

CRITICAL APPRECIATION:

The poet uses cacophonic auditory images of storms, shrills and drills to the feelings of chaos and destruction caused by the nuclear explosion. The rhyme scheme in these lines is AABB.

LINES 5-8

Woeful were all the hills Wasteful were all the grills None to share their moans None to lessen their groans.

EXPLANATION:

The poet describes the scene of destruction when America and its allies dropped atom bombs on the two glorious cities of Japan in 1945. He says that even the hills seemed to moun over the massive loss of life. All the landscape was ruined and the beauty crushed. The line 'Wasteful were all the grills' depicts the horrible destruction of public places like restaurants and hotels which were reduced to rubble and ashes. The poet describes the pitiable and miserable condition the sufferers who screamed in pain and cried for help. The innocent civilians were made to suffer insufferable pain, but was no one to save their life or ease their death. These lines condemn this brutality of power-drunk people.

CRITICAL APPRECIATION:

The auditory images of groans and moans convey the feelings of intense pain suffered by the Japanese people. The adjectives 'Wooful' and Wasteful' depict the painful annihilation of life and glory. The rhyme scheme in these lines is AABB.

LINES 9-12

The flowers, fizeour, all smashed Burnt, crushed and all dashed And all passed through the grind Leaving the coothing behind.

EXPLANATION:

The poet describes the scene of destruction when America and its allies dropped atom bombs on the two glorious cities of Japan in 1945. He describes the intensity of the blast by portraying the destruction of natural beauty. 'The flowers', representing beauty, grace and glory, were crushed and burnt to ashes. In a few moments, life with all its charm and fragrance was destroyed most cruelly and horribly. The two cities presented a view of horrible destruction with no signs of pride and prosperity left behind. The lines evoke feelings of pity, sympathy and compassion.

CRITICAL APPRECIATION:

The olfactory and gustatory images of 'flowers' and 'flavors' are employed by the poet to show the destruction caused by the nuclear attack. The rhyme scheme in these lines is AABB.

LINES 13-16

No eye could look The explosion that took The lives of two glories In the moments of furies.

EXPLANATION:

The poet describes the scene of destruction when America and its allies dropped atom bombs on the two glorious cities of Japan in 1945. He harrates that the explosion was so severe and intense that no human eye could see the horrible devastation. The two cities Nagasati and Hiroshina were reduced to ashes with all their beauty and glory. They turned into a ceath valley within no time. The poet condemns the insane, inhuman and brutat act that caused widespread destruction of all life and its beauty.

CRITICAL APPRECIATION:

The word 'glories' here stands for two glorious cities of Japan, Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The line 'No eye could look' implies the intensity of brutality and the limits of human suffering. The rhyme scheme in these lines is AABB.

LINES 17-20

All was done by a nation Who in her wild passion Cared not for the human rights Nor saved them from deadly fights.

EXPLANATION.

The boet describes the scene of destruction when America and its allies dropped atom borobs on the two glorious cities of Japan in 1945. In these lines, the poet condemns the powerful nation whose craze and insanity claimed the lives of innocent people and ruined their beautiful cities. The mad anger of the nation dissolved its intellect and paralyzed its reasoning faculty. The nation that claims to be the torch-bearer of human rights violated all norms and values, and caused widespread destruction. Being a superpower, it should have played a positive role, but it played a negative and destructive role. It attacked innocent people and brought suffering and misery to humanity.

CRITICAL APPRECIATION:

The line 'All was done a nation' expresses the hypocrisy and duplicity of a power-drunk nation that played a most shameful role in human history. The rhyme scheme in these lines is AABB.

LINES 21-24

But how much great were they Who bore the pains of black day: "Ashes are not merely the waste They can really create the great."

EXPLANATION:

In the last stanza, the poet pays tribute to the Japanese who bore the pain and suffering boldly and courageously. He appreciates the efforts of the brave people who would hard to shake off the after-effects of the war and devasation. The poet bays homage to the people who mustered up their courage and to see again to the heights of glory as an economic power. The poet wants to say that the final victory is theirs who do not lose heart and whose indestructible will coes not let them stoop down. He sums up the dreadful story on a note of courage and optimism: a nation's greatness is tested and such thend by pain and suffering.

CRUTICAL APPRECIATION:

Through paradoxical statement, the poet presents ashes as a symbol of revival and rebirth. He means to say that new life comes into being after total destruction and annihilation. The rhyme scheme in these lines is AABB.
